

Zooming in my Corona

Why do I hear the song “My Sharona” every time I hear the word corona. (Yes, I realize that I have just put it in your head as well. Sorry, not sorry) I will say this, I haven’t done much cruising around in my corona. In fact, we have spent every day since mid March on some form of lockdown. In spite of our various restrictions this has still been a season of valuable ministry. Progress has been made in two specific areas that have great strategic importance. The first area is the completion of APTEA recognition. During this corona season we have been able to continue engaging with SAST (Southern Africa School of Theology) leadership to advance toward the goal of getting endorsement with APTEA (professional education endorsement we are seeking). Praise the Lord for zoom!!! We have had many zoom meetings to clarify the way forward, give assignments to various members of the team, check in on those assignments, and finalize their completion. We have made fantastic progress and expect to conclude this three year process by the end of the year. Praise the Lord for a season of accomplishment! The second area is the advancement of the FAOG education committee. In South Africa there are several different AG groups all connected through the FAOG SA (Fellowship of the Assemblies of God South Africa). However, God has been moving in recent years and we have made progress in the journey of reconciliation between these groups. The first area of collaboration is the area of ministerial training. In mid May, a zoom meeting of educators from all the AG groups took place and a path towards true partnership was tentatively outlined. While there is much work to be done, there is genuine excitement about the journey ahead and a collective commitment to see dreams become reality. These are exciting days!

We thank the Lord for His faithfulness with our college kids during this lonely season.

We thank the Lord for protecting us physically, especially as we reach out to those who are suffering.

Please join us in praying for the pastors and pastor’s wives who have lost their spouses (9) to COVID recently.

We ask the Lord to be with the kids as they start college and high school.

We ask the Lord for help in finishing out the 2020 school year with the Bible College students. We have shifted to two-week intensives for the rest of the year; this new system is challenging for them and the school.
